MARKET COMMENTS

This sale was cataloged using the 1950 Standard Catalog of United States Coins. We quote from the Editor's Note in the Standard Catalog, "Our impression is that the market for United States Coins has stabilized to a very considerable extent during the past year. Particular attention should be called to the U. S. proof coins. Since the publication of the mint report on the coinage of this series prices have advanced considerably. Once again attention should be called to the large number of new collectors. Many of these collectors have become interested through the acquisition of new issues and yearly sets. A steady advance is bound to take place in the value of the commoner coins and minor rarities."

May we also add our comment: The interest shown in currency is little short of amazing. Since there are no large stocks or supplies available, there will no doubt be a decided increase in the prices of currency during the coming year. Gold coins have staged a comeback and the demand is now quite strong. Those collectors who have held off buying the last few years have now become active again.
